Closing Call to Action (~50 words): At the 2026 HLPF, we urge Member States to reaffirm commitment to the 2030 Agenda by: ensuring full and meaningful inclusion of civil society; delivering concrete SDG financing; strengthening multilateralism; advancing equitable reform of multilateral institutions; and addressing structural and systemic inequalities. More efforts and increase budgeting to Local government and municipals is needed to promote communities and cities resilience for sustainable development peoplesparticipation participation • 7:36 AM, Feb 25 (GMT+05:30) At the 2026 HLPF, we urge Member States to ensure meaningful civil society inclusion, open space for NGOs, equitable SDG financing, strengthened multilateralism, and local government support. Without independent civil society participation, SDGs cannot reach target communities and risk remaining symbolic commitments rather than actionable change.

SDG 7: Scale up a just, rapid transition to renewable, reliable, and affordable energy. End fossil fuel expansion and redirect harmful subsidies toward clean energy access, energy efficiency, and resilient grids. Ensure transitions protect workers and communities, and expand decentralized solutions for least-served areas. Here, specifically, innovations in solar energy, bio-fuel technology and thermal energy sources are highly recommended for global scaling.
peoplesparticipation participation • 7:30 AM, Feb 25 (GMT+05:30) Public-private partnerships should accelerate a just and inclusive clean energy transition by scaling affordable renewable technologies—especially solar, biofuel, and thermal solutions —while redirecting subsidies toward efficiency, protecting workers and communities, and expanding decentralized energy access for underserved areas with strong NGO and non-profit participation.
